Make a one-to-one WhatsApp video call

Video calls use internet and need working camera and microphone access. Practise with a known person somewhere you are comfortable being seen and heard.

WhatsApp on iPhone or Android | 2 min read | 5 steps

Before you start

- ☐ WhatsApp set up on both phones
- ☐ An internet connection
- ☐ Permission for camera and microphone
- ☐ A trusted contact ready to answer

1. Arrange a practice call

Agree a suitable time through a message or another known contact method. Use home Wi-Fi if available and check your battery. Mobile-data costs and connection quality can affect a video call.

- ☐ Done this step

2. Open the right conversation

Open WhatsApp Chats and choose the person. Read their name and check their number if there is any doubt. Calling from a group can involve more people, so start with an individual conversation.

- ☐ Done this step

3. Start video deliberately

Tap the camera-shaped video-call control near the top of the chat. If asked, allow the camera and microphone only for the genuine app. Wait for the person to answer; the ordinary handset control starts a voice call instead.

☐ Done this step

4. Check sound and picture

Look at your own preview and ask whether the other person can hear you. Microphone mute and camera-off controls stop different things. Use them when wanted; turning off video does not automatically mute the room's sound.

☐ Done this step

5. Finish and check

Tap the red hang-up control. Wait until the chat or call summary returns. If the picture freezes, check the connection or use voice-only by agreement rather than changing several settings during the conversation.

☐ Done this step

Try it for yourself

Make a short agreed call and practise muting, restoring sound and ending it.

☐ I tried the task.

My notes

Can I use it for an emergency call?

Do not rely on an internet messaging app as your emergency calling route. Use the appropriate emergency service contact method for your location.
